LEADERSHIP SKILLS

Larger Bases

In an army with Larger Bases, models can use different Base Sizes from those listed in their unit entries. This is to allow people with models on slightly larger bases to play The 9th Age.

Each unit using this option must have the new base size noted on the Army List, and all models in a unit must have the same base size.

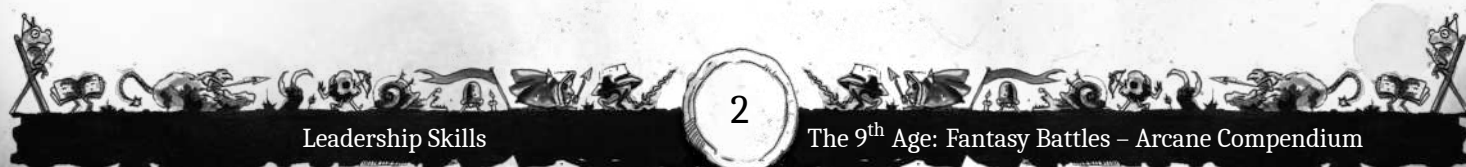

The Base Sizes must be:

- 100% – 125% of the original width
- 100% – 150% of the original depth
- Both width and depth must be divisible by 5 mm

In addition, Attachable models with increased Base Sizes can only join Units with the same percentage increase(s) to their Base Sizes.

If the models with increased Base Size make up 25% or less of the total model count, the army suffers a penalty of -200 Victory Points at the end of the game (to a minimum of 0). Armies with more than 25% (or none at all) do not suffer this penalty.

Note: The purpose of this rule is to allow people to use models from different game systems to test out T9A or to use their particularly imposing models legally.

MAGIC ITEMS

Magic Items are upgrades that players can add to certain models or units (typically Characters and units with a Standard Bearer) when building their armies. Magic Items enhance the mundane equipment of the models. Note that models with several model parts can only purchase upgrades for the model part with a Magic Item allowance. Magic Items are divided into three classes:

- Common: rules and Point Cost for these are found below; common magic items are available to models of any Army Book that has access to Magic Items.
- Shared: rules are found below, but not Point Cost; these are only available to models belonging to an Army Book where the Shared Magic Items is listed, alongside its points.
- Army-Specific: rules and point cost are given in the Army Books, and are only available to that specific Army Book.

Properties of Magic Items

The following terms are common keywords used to describe Magic Items:

- Category: each Magic Item belongs to a single Category, listed below. No model or unit can select more than one Magic Item from each Category.
- Dominant: a model can only have one Dominant Magic Item, no matter its Category.
- Legendary: all Magic Items are Legendary, unless stated otherwise.

Who is affected ?

Unless specifically mentioned otherwise:

- Global and Defensive Characteristic modifiers are applied only to the model part taking the Magic Item (and not to other model parts such as mounts)*.
- Model Rules that are not Attack Attributes are applied to the combined model as a whole.
- Offensive Characteristic modifiers and Attack Attributes are applied only to the model part bearing or wearing the item.
 - Rules and modifiers from a Weapon Enchantment are only applied to the Standard Melee Attacks made with the Enchanted Weapon.

Exceptions to the above may be noted in the item's description, using terminology such as:

- The bearer, wearer, or wielder - these terms mean the same thing for rules purposes and refer to the model part the Magic Item was bought for, and therefore generally do not affect mounts.
- The bearer's model, wearer's model, or wielder's model - these terms refer to all model parts of the model the Magic Item was bought for, including their mounts.
- The bearer's unit, wearer's unit, or wielder's unit - these terms refer to all model parts in the same unit as the model the Magic Item was bought for, including mounts and the model itself.

Characters on mounts with fixed Global or Defensive Characteristics values (i.e. any value that is not 'C' or 'C+X') do not benefit from modifiers to those Characteristics.*

See the 'Character Mounts' section of the 'Characters' chapter for examples of interactions with mounts.

List of Common and Shared Magic Items

3.A Weapon Enchantments

Weapon Enchantments are upgrades that enhance weapons. A weapon on which a Weapon Enchantment is applied becomes an Enchanted Weapon. The Army List must indicate which weapon that the model is equipped with is an Enchanted Weapon (reminder: models are equipped with a Hand Weapon by default).

Each Weapon Enchantment can only enchant particular weapon types (e.g. Great Weapon) or a category of weapons (e.g. Melee Weapon).

The following rules apply to all Enchanted Weapons, unless specifically mentioned otherwise:

- If a model is equipped with an Enchanted Weapon it must use it in Combat whenever possible.
- All attacks made with the Enchanted Weapon gain Magical Attacks.
- The Enchanted Weapon follows the rules for both its original weapon type and the Weapon Enchantment.
- See the rules for weapons (Model Rules) for details on when to apply modifiers and additional rules.

Common Weapon Enchantments

Touch of Greatness 50 pts
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
+1 Str, +1 AP.

Vorpal Binding 50 pts
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
Successful Armour Saves, Regeneration Saves and Aegis Saves against attacks made with Vorpal Binding must be rerolled.

King Slayer 35 pts
Models without Solitary only.
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
Attached, which cannot be lost.
While there is an enemy Character in contact with the wielder's unit, the wielder gains +1 Att, +2 Str, and +2 AP.

Giant Slayer 25 pts
Height 1-3 only.
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
Crush Attack.
This Crush Attack gains +1 to hit towards models with Height 5.

Shared Weapon Enchantments

Eldritch Inscriptions
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
First Strike (Hatred, Zeal).

Hero's Heart
Enchantment: Hand Weapon or Paired Weapons.
+1 Att, and always at least Str 5 and AP 2.

Shield Breaker
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
+6 AP.

Supernatural Dexterity
Height 1-3 only.
Enchantment: Melee Weapon.
+3 Def and +3 Off.

3.B Armour Enchantments

These upgrades apply to pieces of armour carried by a model, and can in general be taken by any model. That model is then considered as wearing an Enchanted Armour.

If an Armour Enchantment is restricted to models with a minimum Armour value, for this purpose only consider the model's part unmodified base Armour value (excluding mounts), the number written on its profile in the Army Book.

The following rules apply to all Armour Enchantments, unless specifically mentioned otherwise:

- Characteristics modifiers, Model Rules, and all other rules associated with Armour Enchantments are generally only applied to the model part wearing the Enchanted Armour, and do not affect other model parts such as mounts. This includes modifiers to Global and Defensive Characteristics.
However, note that certain Model Rules, particularly Model Rules that are neither an Attack Attribute nor a weapon, are always applied to the combined model (and not only to individual model parts).

For example the Basalt Infusion provides +1 Arm and Aegis. '+1 Arm' is a Characteristic modifier, and is thus only applied to the Character wearing the Enchanted Armour.

If this Character rides a mount that has its own Armour value, the Armour modifier from Basalt Infusion has no effect on the combined model.

However, Aegis is a Global Model Rule, which means it is not applied to an individual model part, but to the whole combined model.

Common Armour Enchantments

Destiny's Call

90 pts

Height 1-4 only. Models without Construct only.

Aegis (4+), and the model's Armour is always 3.

Note that this means it cannot be improved beyond 3.

It is still affected by Armour Penetration.

Warding of Unity

40 pts

Height 1-3 only. Models without Solitary only.

Attached, which cannot be lost, and Resistance (Melee Attacks).

Basalt Infusion

35 pts

Height 1-4 only.

+1 Armour, Aegis (3+, against Flaming Attacks), and the wearer automatically fails all Regeneration Saves.

Shared Armour Enchantments

Death Cheater

Height 1-4 only.

+1 Arm, and Regeneration (4+).

Ghostly Guard

Height 1-4 only.

+2 Arm against non-Magical Attacks.

3.C Shield Enchantments

Shield Enchantments are upgrades that apply to Shields. An Enchanted Shield follows the rules for both the original Shield and the Shield Enchantment.

The following rules apply to all Shield Enchantments, unless specifically mentioned otherwise:

- The effect of a Shield Enchantment only applies when the bearer of the Enchanted Shield is Using a Shield (remember that a model part cannot use a Shield to protect against Melee Attacks when it is using a Two-Handed weapon in Combat).
- Characteristic modifiers, Model Rules, and all other rules associated with Shield Enchantments follow the same rules as for Armour Enchantments.

Common Shield Enchantments

Wild Warding

Height 1–4 only.

+3 Arm.

The models Armour value can never be improved beyond 5.

40 pts

Shared Shield Enchantments

Dusk Forged

Height 1–4 only.

The bearer must reroll its failed Armour Saves.

The bearer automatically fails all Aegis Saves and Regeneration Saves, regardless of whether Using the Shield or not.

Sigil of Protection

Height 1–4 only.

Enchantment: Metal Armour.

+1 Arm.

3.D Artefacts

Artefacts are unique and powerful items that can have various effects. No additional rules apply to Artefacts.

Common Artefacts

Talisman of the Void 65 pts
Channel (1).

This item can only be used if the model's army's total combined Channel is 2 or less (excluding Channel from this Magic Item).

Mimic Cloak 60 pts

Height 1-3 only. Wizards only.

Stand Behind.

The wearer's model loses Bodyguard and Stubborn, cannot gain either in any way, and is never considered to fulfil the criteria of Bodyguard.

In addition, the model cannot make any Supporting Attacks.

Talisman of Shielding 50 pts

Height 1-4 only.

Aegis (5+).

Magical Heirloom 35 pts

Wizards only.

The bearer knows the Hereditary Spell of its Army Book in addition to its other spells, i.e. it cannot select it during Spell Selection, and cannot replace or otherwise lose it).

Crown of the Wizard King 25 pts

Cannot be taken by Wizards.

During Pre-game Selections, randomise a Magic Path (from all ten Paths in this book).

The wearer is a Wizard Apprentice using the randomised Path, and may not Swap any spells.

The bearer cannot take any Magic Items nor any other upgrades that are restricted to Wizards (or any types of Wizards).

Shared Artefacts

Mask of Mindless Violence

Height 1-3 only.

Rage.

All Melee Attacks made by or against the wearer gain +1 to hit.

Obsidian Rock

Magic Resistance (2).

Rod of Battle

The bearer can cast a unique Bound Spell:

Rod of Battle: Casting Value (4+)

Type: Range 18", Augment. Duration: One Turn.

Effect:

The target's Standard Melee Attacks gain +1 to hit and Magical Attacks.

3.E Potions and Scrolls

Potions and Scrolls are Magic Items that provide temporary effects when consumed by a model. The following rules apply to all Potions and Scrolls, unless specifically mentioned otherwise:

- Potions and Scrolls can be activated at the start of any phase, or during Combat Choices in a Round of Combat.
- Their effects (including Characteristic modifiers and Attack Attributes) are only applied to the model part taking the Magic Item, and do not affect other model parts such as mounts.

Common Potions and Scrolls

Binding Scroll	50 pts
One use only. Duration: One Phase Can be activated during the opponent's 'Siphon the Veil' (Magic Phase, step 2). When activated, choose a Caster and select one of their spells (Bound or Learned): the chosen Caster cannot voluntarily cast the selected instance of this spell. E.g. if a caster has the same spell more than one time, only a single instance cannot be cast, and this has no effect on Magical Mishap
Dragon's Brew	35 pts
One use only. Duration: End of Turn Breath Attack (Str 4, AP 1, Flaming Attacks, Stand and Shoot).
Potion of Power Preservation	30 pts
One use only. Duration: Instant. May be used immediately when a Casting Roll or Dispel Roll fails, due to not rolling high enough: do not discard the Magic Dice used in this unsuccessful attempt.
Potion of Swiftiness	10 pts
One use only. Duration: Round of Combat. +3 Agi.

Shared Potions and Scrolls

Potion of Healing

Height 1-4 only.

One use only. Duration: Instant.

The bearer's model Recovers 1 HP.

Scroll of a Free Mind

Wizard Apprentice, Wizard Adept or Wizard Master only.

One use only. Duration: Permanent.

Can be activated in a friendly Magic Phase before drawing a Flux card: the bearer loses all its Learned Spells from its selected Magic Path granted by Wizard Apprentice, Wizard Adept, Wizard Master, or Universal Swap (the Hereditary Spell, as well as spells granted by other sources, are unaffected).

The bearer gains the same number of spells from a single other Path available to them during list creation.

The spells are gained starting from the first spell of the Path, progressing towards the last spell of the Path.

This does not change the bearer's chosen Magic Path.

Note: by doing so, it is possible that a single Wizard gain the same spell twice – yet they still won't be able to cast that same spell multiple times (for example, a Death Cult Hierarch with Wizard Adept and Soul Conduit that selected spells #1 and #3 from Divination and swapped to Duty is Eternal during Battle Setup selects Evocation with Scroll of the Free Mind: they now know Whispers of the Veil twice, as well as Danse Macabre, and Duty is Eternal).

Scroll of Draining

One use only. Duration: Instant.

May be activated in the opponent's Magic Phase, immediately after Excess Magic: the opponent immediately discards 1 Magic Dice.

Scroll of Power

Wizards only.

One use only. Duration: Instant.

Can be used immediately after a seeing the result of a Casting Roll 'Roll Dice' (5.A Casting Spells, 3) of a Learned Spell by the bearer.

The bearer may add one additional free Magic Dice to this Casting Roll.

The limit of five Magic Dice still applies.

Note: The usage of a Power Scroll can change a Casting Roll to a Miscast.

Spell Scroll

Wizards only.

One use only. Duration: One Phase.

Can be activated at any time during your Magic Phase. The bearer knows the spell indicated in brackets in addition to its other spells, unless the bearer already knows it.

3.F Banner Enchantments

Banner Enchantments are upgrades for Battle Standard Bearer and units containing a Standard Bearer, assuming these units have access to Magic Items (as indicated in their unit entry).

Common Banner Enchantments

Stalker's Standard

70 pts

Rare.

The bearer's unit gains Strider.

Flaming Standard

40 pts

Rare.

One use only. Duration: End of Combat.

Can be activated during Combat Choices.

The bearer's unit gains Flaming Attacks

Sheltering Standard

20 pts

Rare.

Rank-and-File units without additional models only..

Attacks with Armour Penetration 3 or less can never reduce the Armour Save roll of the bearer's unit to worse than 6+.

Aether Icon

10 pts

Rare.

The bearer's unit gains Magic Resistance (1).

Shared Banner Enchantments

Banner of Courage

Uncommon.

The bearer's unit may reroll failed Panic Tests.

If the Battle Standard Bearer or the General is part of the bearer's unit, it automatically passes Panic Tests instead.

Banner of Speed

Uncommon.

A unit containing a Banner of Speed gains +1" Charge Speed and +1" Mobility.

Distortion Emblem

One use only. Duration: End of Turn.

May be activated at the start of any Phase.

The bearer's unit gains Hard Target (2).

Rending Banner

One use only. Duration: End of Combat.

Can be activated during Combat Choices:

Rank-and-File models in the bearer's unit gain +1 AP.

SPELLS

Most spells belong to a specific Path of Magic. All spells have the following attributes:

Spell Name

Use the spell's name to indicate which spell you want to cast.

Casting Value

The Casting Value (CV) is the minimum number you need to roll with Magic Dice to successfully cast the spell.

Spell Type

The Spell Type specifies how the target of the spell is chosen. A spell can have one or more of the following spell Types:

- Augment: can only target friendly units, (or friendly models within units if Focused).
- Aura: targets all eligible targets.
For example, a spell with Augment, Aura, and Range 12" targets all friendly units within 12" of the Caster.
- Caster: can only target the model casting the spell.
- Damage: can only target units not Engaged in Combat.
When the origin of the damage direction is relevant, it is determined by the point from which the damage range is measured. E.g For Wrath of God the damage direction would be measured from the Wrath of God marker.
- Focused: can only target single models, including Attachable Models inside units. If a model consisting of multiple model parts is targeted, only one part can be chosen.

- Ground: the spell targets a point on the Battlefield rather than units or models.
- Hex: can only target enemy units, (enemy models within units if Focused).
- Missile: can only target units within the Caster's Line of Sight, and cannot be cast if the Caster is Engaged in Combat. When casting a spell with Type: Missile, check which is the Target Facing (see Shooting Phase chapter).
- Range X": the spell has a maximum casting range. Targets must be within X" of the Caster.
- Universal: the spell can target both friendly and enemy units (or models within units if Focused).

Replicable

Multiple attempts at casting a Replicable spell can be made in the same Magic Phase without suffering the normal -3 modifier to the Casting Roll (or -1 in the case of Bound Spells).

Note that the spell still can not be attempted multiple times to be cast by the same Wizard.

Duration

All spells have a Duration, which follows the same rule as described under 'Duration of Effects' (see the 'Definitions and Terminology' chapter).

Effect

The effect of a spell describes what happens to the target when the spell is successfully cast.

PATHS OF MAGIC

Spells are cast during the Magic Phase. Most spells belong to a specific Path of Magic.

Excellency, I've worked with warlocks, flame callers, priests, and all manner of hedge wizards, and I would trade all of them for a skilled alchemist. Not only will they bring fire and death on the battlefield, but they'll aid in mending arms and armour, and when the fight's done, finding the enemy's loot. Not only that, but you'll never see the men's breast plates, or blades, shine brighter than with one of them around.

—Captain Grigori of the Aegis and Blade Mercenary Company

The path of the Alchemist, dear student, is the most noble of the paths of magic, for it seeks to divine truth from the nature of the material world. We seek to reduce all things to their most basic true essence, and by so doing unveil the means to create anything. From the crafting of rare substances to separating the impurities from the body, to binding of purified metals to arms and armour, Alchemy is the key to unlocking the world's secrets, and in knowing them, mastery of the world. Its long history can be traced to the Holy City, and its myriad uses played no small part in the success and growth of the Empire. We can learn much from their example and should seek to emulate them in our own beloved Sonnstahl. Masters of our path focus their craft on working with metals and we divide our efforts between the practical use of the vulgar metals, and the mystical properties of their noble counterparts. While the proper combinations and mixtures of the base metals can create useful alloys of bronze or steel, which enhance the might of any army, the mixtures of gold and silver call to the soul and banish dark spirits, making protective talismans and wards.

—From the lectures of Professor Petrad von Miterbatt, Master Alchemist to the Society

Alchemy

Alchemy is the Path of Transmutation. It focuses on chemical reactions and transformation of materials. Its practitioners attempt to understand, manipulate and perfect the physical materials of the world, often using potions, ethers and other chemical aids. Alchemists are typically obsessive perfectionists – through their work with materials, many seek enlightenment and the keys of creation.

1. Apprentice Spell

Living Steel

CV	Type	Duration

Twixt Sun and Moon, in grey twilight, you will find me there
 Where flame meets ice, and water flows, I will hold vigil
 Sea and sky, part for horizon, I ever seek it for you
 Death's cold hand and life's sweet song, I touch and hear and hope
 Here, in serenity, I await you. Always.

—Poem for a lover by Lefendius,
 Sylvan Elf and student of Cosmology

Our world is a fragile thing, a perfect pearl in a pounding sea. It is a miracle that the elements necessary for its creation aligned, and in the calm between opposing tides, our island of existence formed. The Saurians teach of the power of Cosmos, prizing her prime qualities of order and structure above all others. Yet a world without change is a world frozen, doomed to an entropy which would eventually stifle life itself. Worshippers of the Dark Gods take chaos and chance as their precepts, and claw at the foundations of the world. They are blind to their own failure to achieve perfect chaos, and the loathsome consequences of structure's collapse – even our very consciousness relies upon some small piece of order to maintain. Here, at the eye of the storm, we see what those ideologues fail to. All life exists in a balance, sheltered from the extremes of Chaos and Cosmos, yet made possible by a fusion of both. In this institution, you will learn the ways of this balance. You will discover how to shape the equilibrium, the ease with which the hand of Cosmos grasps, or the world slides towards Chaos. Yet always you must ensure its return to harmony. Before you, you will find the scales of balance, and the candle of duality. Take them with you, and take the rest of the day to wander. Seek out the divisions of our world: light and dark, land and sea, life and death, and observe the slender thread separating them. That is the subject of your future studies, and the source of our art.

—Lecture given to new students at Canreig University by Master Dratume

Cosmology

Cosmology is the Path of Balance. It focuses on the cosmic equilibrium between the enduring Cosmos of the Mortal Realm and the capricious Chaos of the Immortal, producing forces of preservation or destruction, peace or pandemonium, life or death. Cosmologists can be unpredictable, yet always seek to arrive at a balance. Their determination to see all sides often sets them at odds with ardent believers in a cause.

Duality: All Cosmology spells are divided into two versions, representing opposing aspects:

Cosmos  and Chaos .

When casting a Cosmology spell, always declare which version of the spell you are using, and substitute the square brackets ([α]) with the content listed in the table at the bottom of each Spell Card corresponding to the chosen version (Cosmos or Chaos).

Fortune tellers, tarot readers, clairvoyants, seers – I've seen them all in my time. Claims of arcane knowledge always quickly unravelled into vague premonitions of the obvious or platitudes from the dearly departed. Until a real Diviner came to our city and I felt dismay at the whispered truths she should not have known. After her timely warning of a Beast attack, she was afforded much greater respect. From a distance.

—Captain Albrecht Gutmann of Langenhäusen

In the first days of learning our art, the images and sounds are overwhelming. Past, present and future, voices from near and far, all come together in a bewildering disarray. Many a budding Diviner is driven mad before they ever learn to harness their powers, before the mists of time begin to part. Those who do soon pick up the tricks of defending blows before they are even swung, reading flashes of the future in mirrors or crystal balls; but those are mere intuitions. The true masters of prophecy are able to foresee great events years or even centuries in advance, though few have the insight to interpret their words. Yet a Diviner's greatest strength does not lie in their individual gifts, but when those powers are united. Acting as a Conclave, they can see across half the world and follow a family line age back to its progenitor. The greatest Conclave for a hundred years inspired the Sunna Cycle, adding the truth of those ancient events to the myths. My own first steps were far less illustrious, learning through experimentation. Soon, avoiding the town bully came as second nature to me, and my hearing was credited with warning of a wolf approaching the flock before any other was aware. Yet the fire that claimed our village and spared only me and my infant sister was a step too far. Were it not for the 'fortuitous' arrival of my soon-to-be mentor, I dread to think of the consequences. I owe the greatest of debts to Madam Trapp.

—Memoirs of Pieter Tiele, Student of the Art of Divination, 876 A.S.

Divination

Divination is the Path of Prophecy. It focuses on the foretelling of future events, knowledge of the unknown, and recognising the strands of fate. With unparalleled knowledge of the flow of time, its practitioners are able to manipulate destiny, predict actions, provide warnings or even cut short its threads in devastating bursts of power. Diviners are highly sought-after, often driving these magicians to adopt elusive habits. Additionally, the challenge of discerning visions from reality drives many of their number to madness.

*This spell only ever affects the marked Health Pool.

Effect

Mark a Health Pool in the target unit, which has to be Rank-and-File if possible. Place one "Doom" Token on the marked Health Pool, and one at the start of each friendly Magic Phase.
At the end of any friendly Magic Phase, if the target is Unengaged, the Caster may end the spell. If so, remove all corresponding Doom Tokens: for each removed token, the marked Health Pool suffers 3 hits with Str 6, AP 2, and Magical Attacks.

I have seen druids – that is what they call their magicians – at work on the battlefield, where they turn the mighty forces of nature against their enemies as much as to the healing of their own forces. But I will never forget the ritual of the mistletoe that I observed in time of peace. The villagers' chanting filled the warm night as their wizard came forth, robed in stunning white. He stood in trance, his power felt by all, and suddenly I noticed that the village square was filled with oak trees, answering the sorcerer's call, who bent their boughs to him so that, golden sickle flickering in the firelight, he could purge them of the white-berried parasite.

— Innaturalis Historia, by Blinny the Very Old,
869 Before Sunna

Kalenstein, of course, is rightfully respected for his work on the nature of Shamanic wizardry. And yet I am afraid the tomes he has compiled on the true source of the Druid's power are terribly misguided – even if the authorities have foolishly refused to acknowledge it yet. Like so many ignoramuses before him, dear Kalenstein places the Druid's power in the very ground. This is correct so far as it goes, for druids do indeed draw upon the earth, and yet it would be the purest folly to believe, as he does, that the magic somehow derives from the rocks or soil itself. Only the basest superstition could convince us that these objects are anything more than inanimate. No, learned friends, the true source of Druidism is not the soil but the very life force of nature itself. A skillful druid taps the pure essence of Cosmos – locked within the earth at the dawn of time – whom they view as a primaeval Mother figure. It is the Earth Mother and she alone who turns the cycle of days, years and seasons on which we all rely – turns them like a great planetary engine that only the most accomplished mages can truly harness. Druids learn to attune themselves over many years to its rhythm. It is for this reason that practice of Druidism borders on religion, and that wise druids will not neglect the proper ritual respect of the Mother who provides for them. It also explains the use of the otherwise inexplicable standing stones that, far from being charged with their own innate power, act as conductors to a much greater power below. Whether the blood sacrifices of the most extreme sects are truly necessary in this regard is doubtful, and yet such barbarism cannot hurt a druid's chances of greater power. Kalenstein and his sycophants would do well to note this.

Druidism

Druidism is the Path of Nature. It focuses on the life force of the natural world, empowering and enhancing physical bodies and the natural environment. It can augment growth and healing to a great degree – mending fatal wounds and bringing life to barren earth. Druids care little for politics and prestige – many would rather converse with plants than people.

This is the path of the world lying behind the mirror of life! There's no secret beyond death hidden to us, for we are the Lords of the Souls! We know the Hidden One himself, for we are the masters of the most secret essences! We know the Truth of Names.

— Grimoire of the Lords of Souls, by Stephen 'The Mad' Madwers

To judge from my experience, we, the wanderers on the Path of Evocation, are among the most disquieting all the magicians and sorcerers. Stories are told across the world about our mesmerizing gaze, our disturbing look into the eye of the enemies, for we are able to gaze into the connection between the soul of a creature and the abyss. There is truth to some of these claims, souls are the very essence of a living creature, and an Evoker knows well how to call, weaken or strengthen them. The discipline of Evocation is based on the force lying beyond the realm of death, the root of life itself, the power governing the existence of a living creature, including Time itself and its capacity to consume the body of that creature. When some of this power leaks into the material world it will incarnate as a body made of flesh and bones from either a man or beast, and it becomes its own individual force. It is this force that sustains the material body and gives a living creature its consciousness and soul. Although unique, these souls are still recognisable by a sound, known to older magicians as their True Name. We are commonly named Lords of the Souls, as we can evoke, bolster or cripple the soul of others and even, in some cases, evoke lifeforces from the lands of the dead, thanks to our knowledge of True Names and the forbidden sounds. Mastering the knowledge of the essence of death, it serves us more as resource than limitation.

— Honorius the Grim, The Book of Souls

Evocation

Evocation is the Path of Souls. It focuses on the spiritual essence of living creatures – calling forth, strengthening and weakening souls in the Mortal Realm, or even summoning them from beyond the Veil. It bypasses the physical might of a being, interacting directly with the psyche to devastating effect, sometimes leaving nothing but a lifeless body. Evokers carry their power as an eerie aura, with disembodied souls drawn to those who can offer them a voice – or a release.

I remember my father's fear and anger when he discovered I was left-handed. Just a tiny child, I suffered the futile tortures and agonies of his crazed correction therapies. In vain was it explained to him that while all occult wizards are left-handed, but a tiny fraction of left-handed people turn to the occult. Hewouldn't listen – perhaps it was his stubbornness more than his cruelty that was really responsible for my future path.

— Memoirs of the former Lord Leidarth, Occultist of the 9th Degree

Leave ye not the shadows, ye who dabble in the Hidden Art.
Get thee to the gallows, where thief and murderer leave their heart.
Seek ye not in open roads, where common man can make his way,
For the power of our ancient codes suffers not clear light of day.

So state the opening lines of the infamous Occult Creed. Of unknown provenance, the poem ranks among the primary causes for the dire reputation of the mysterious Path of Occultism. Poorly understood and subject to widespread misinterpretation, this ancient and highly potent lore is commonly called Dark Magic (many whisper it is a gateway to the Dark Gods themselves), and yet its students have rarely been found responsible for any nefarious activities in our lands, despite their persecution. In fact, occultists try to remain hidden not just to avoid the judging eyes of society, but because their 'Art', as they call it, thrives behind closed doors and wilts under public gaze. Besides, it is probable that the secrets of the Occult are jealously guarded more to maintain their exclusive prestige than out of fear that evil men will misuse them. Indeed, as we see in the final lines of the Creed, Occultism has always been a morally neutral Path:

If ye master tears, poison, soil of grave, and still avoid the noose
All the power of Darkness will be thy slave – but only ye can find its use.

— From the Dictionnaire Magique, published anonymously but thought to be authored by François L'Aroutet, known liberal and enemy of the Church

Occultism

Occultism is the Path of Forbidden Knowledge. It focuses on arcane methods considered illicit or immoral. Knowledge gained from supernals or clandestine research can unlock terrible abilities, while sacrificial rituals channel power through the Veil, enhancing their effects. Occultists are widely feared, operating best in secret and shadow, and few feel safe around someone for whom life itself is a coin to be spent.

The Sacrifice: Before casting any Occultism spell, the Caster may select a Health Pool in a friendly unit within 18": this unit loses a number of Health Points equal to 9 – the Discipline in its profile, to a minimum of 1. No Health Pool can be selected more than once per Magic Phase. If The Sacrifice was performed, the Range of the spell is increased by +6".

*R*ise, rise oh fire, born with light and inside us with effulgence, lord of the offerings, of sacrifice and transformation, bringer of Truth! You are the inner power of the cosmos, you the fundamental principle and ultimate reality of life!

— Preparatory Hymn for the initiation of a Pyromancer

*T*hose worshipping and manipulating the power of fire call this element the Lord of Transformation, ultimate dynamic power of the universe. According to them, Fire is the pivotal element allowing life to flourish, and representing change achieved through destruction and strife. It is the supreme weapon too, permitting cannons to fire, swords to be forged, villages to burn, fortified walls to be torn apart, castles to be burnt to ashes. To them, fire is in the heavens, through the Sun, and can be found in the depths of the earth, through lava and volcanoes. Fire is the element beyond duality and through which duality can be overcome, for it is the ultimate force itself. Pyromancers are violent by nature: they strongly believe truth and evolution can be achieved exclusively through the inner and outer strife represented by the incandescent, burning, passionate, everlasting energy of Fire, which encompasses and symbolises the fiercest passions too, from extreme love, through self-sacrifice to searing wrath. They believe such an element burns in the very core of their own being, and through this inner flame they can master outer, more aggressive flames. Many witnesses of their power have seen flames burning in their eyes and, in some extreme cases, literally arising from their bodies. They believe the spark of life inside them is a part of the cosmic fire dominating the transformation of everything and, ultimately, the relation between Cosmos and Chaos. Knowing such violent and destructive capabilities, Pyromancers generally undergo a severe learning, initiatory path under the tyrannical guide of a master, to prevent self-destructive tendencies, to tame their power and to eventually exploit their abilities within armies, against the right enemies. Such a magical path is generally assessed as one of the most demanding: while other paths can lead to madness or corruption, the only outcomes of Pyromancy are success or total annihilation of the magician. Mastering the infinite power of fire means to be one of the most dangerous among the mortal practitioners of magical powers, not to mention the fact Pyromancers are extremely sought-after for sieges and large battles.

— On the Works of Magical Fire, by Cornelius Von Ullsberg

Pyromancy

Pyromancy is the Path of Fire. It focuses on the creation and control of flames, and manipulation of energy and heat. It is one of the premier paths of offensive magic, as fire is easy to coax into destruction. Pyromancers are known for action, violence, and passionate impulses, commonly seen in their beloved “balls” of fire that many will conjure on impulse – or whim.

Some think the warherds to be mere beasts, led by the strongest of their number. Any who tell you that are fools, and fools of the worst kind at that. I've fought them around the circle of the Middle Sea, from the Copper Mountains, to the Hills of Myra, to the coast of the Great Ocean, and I'll tell you a real truth. It's their shaman that truly lead them, and somehow inspire them to feats of reckless courage and savage fury. If you want my advice on fighting them, kill the shaman first, it's the best hope you have of coming out of the fight alive.

— Carl the Younger, Ex-Mercenary Captain

'Teacher, my study comes to its end. The Master of Battles calls on me, and I must go with him to the Southlands, across the Wastelands. I will not shame the tribe, I will not be found wanting. Even now the chiefs gather, seven tribes, and I will be among them. I ask for your blessing in this, as in all things.' 'What are the teachings you take with you, Arrik?' 'What you have taught me, Lord, I have put in my heart. The songs of spirit that cause my chest to swell, and the great howls of the northern wolves which make warriors grown lose their nerve. I know the hearts of the warriors, and I know the fifty two scars that can be called on to keep the mind from clouding. I will take these gifts you have given me master and I use them to keep my kin alive. I will bring out their best, that our clans will be able to grow with what they will bring home, after the raids. I will use all that you taught me, Wise One.' He stood then, and walked slowly over to me, a smile, half sad, painted on his old face, and he said to me, 'You have learned all I have to teach, and I am too old to follow you south. But I will give you two more gifts to take with you, the first is the armor I wore in my youth, forged in the nether and worn by my master before me.' And the second?' 'My love and prayers, fool Arrik! I will call on every daemon and god of death I know to turn their sight from you and onto your enemies. Now go, the Master of Battles will have need of you.'

—From the memoirs of Yakub Sulaimann, scribe in service to the great Khan's Shaman

Shamanism

Shamanism is the Path of Instinct. It focuses on revealing and using the wild forces found within every being. It can unleash the primal urges hidden in souls, and turn feral beasts into dangerous allies. Shamans usually avoid civilisation, preferring those whose spirits they perceive as wild as their own.

My beloved Lord, when the power of Sunna supports your armies through the holy works of a magician, nothing can stand against them. Thaumaturgy is the only real way a human, a real Lord of Arcalea, can trust magical powers to support his soldiers. Thus, you should respect the tradition of the nobility of our beloved land and call to you all those having knowledge of the Power of Sunna.

— Giovanni Pico di Bellatorre, Letters to Count Manfredi Biancalancia

As a Thaumaturge attached to the Court of the Voivoda, my duty is not only to serve his army as conduit to the Gods, but also to oppose to the magical powers of our enemies. The faith of the Volskali grants me the power of thunder, for our greatest God, Gromovnik, is the Lord of Storms, but my beloved Morana, Mistress of Death, has always held my heart and soul. But faith alone cannot overcome all ordeals. Thaumaturges of the holy nation of Volskaya are trained to fight in the fiercest of battles, for our beloved nation sits in a territory beset by war. I travelled to the west, and in the nation of Sonns-tahl, exchanged knowledge with the Thaumaturges of Sunna. Such an exchange was fruitful, against our common enemies in the east, among the creatures of the Wasteland and the greenhides raiding our territory. There, primitive shamans and daemons are our primary enemies calling upon their blasphemous gods. In battle, such a magical clash is a trial of faith: I cannot fail Gromovnik. I cannot fail the gods of Volskaya. Nothing can stand between me and my faith into the gods: there can be no ego nor selfishness, there can be no doubt nor fear, for I am a Thaumaturge, an instrument of death and war in the hands of the beloved gods of the Volskali.

— From the Diary of Vladimir Efimovič, court Thaumaturge of Voivoda Branković

Thaumaturgy

Thaumaturgy is the Path of Miracles. It focuses on calling for the divine intervention of the gods and their servants. The will of the gods is unknowable, and their aid can rarely be relied upon, yet those who make their power subject to the whims of their deities can achieve the mightiest of effects. Often haughty and judgemental, Thaumaturges are the agents of their gods, bearing their connection to the divine openly and daring others to cross them.

Divine Intervention: Upon resolving the effects of a Thaumaturgy spell 'Spell Effects' (5.A Casting Spells, 6), first roll a D6 and apply the corresponding effect (if any) :

We fought the Dread Elves at the Black Sound, a small but deep bay in the northern provinces. I was serving as a marine aboard Knight Commander Branberg's own flagship, the Ambition's End. That was the first and only time I've fought those Sunna damned creatures. You think you know about curses and magic Inquisitor? Think again. Their witches were able to bring up fogs from nowhere, lead us on wild chases, and confound sailors who were as salt as any you'll find sailing the world. And that was nothing compared to what they could do to you if they met your gaze, it's as if every shame and secret you hold is laid out in front of them. Let me fight a man or dwarf any day, at least they'll just kill me, a witch will just make you wish it were so.

— Sgt. Matthias Neshil, henchman to Inquisitor Norrick Friseland

Sit niece, and listen to your uncle's wisdom. As ever at my knee you have been, so I will teach you the secret way, the way to right every wrong done to you, and settle every score. For you see, sweet one, all things in this world hide secrets, and in knowing those secrets, you gain power over them. The way of the unblinking eye, drilling into the soul and truly knowing the wretchedness that lurks within, use this. You asked me before, why all the villagers fear me, and now I tell you, it is because I know them, and how weak they all are. How unlike you and I they all are. My sweet winter's bloom, you must learn from the creatures of insight, from cat and crow, ferret and owl, see much, say little. Like the wisps of the swamps, learn to lure and bait, and set traps for your prey, for those who have wronged us must never be absolved. Let the fools think they are strong, and when the time comes show them their folly.

—Uncle Estivan the Warlock, lessons to his coven

Witchcraft

Witchcraft is the Path of the Mind. It focuses on people and their thoughts, beliefs and superstitions – adjusting or deceiving them. It can conjure illusions, enhance or ease pain, reshape perspectives, turn friends into foes or instill terror. Many Witches care deeply for their community, others use curses for their own end, but almost all hold themselves apart from those they manipulate and cloak themselves in superstition to aid their work.
