Dwarven Holds

Fortified in great halls carved under the mountains, the Dwarven Holds are mighty strongholds defended by a short but indomitable people. Valuing honour above all else, Hold dwarves are determined and ferocious defenders of their principles and property alike. They are peerless builders and crafters, creating fearsome weapons as well as mastering the unique discipline of runecraft to exploit the power of magic even as they eschew open spellcraft. A dwarven host in its full splendour, voices lifted with oaths and alesong, represents a formidable threat indeed.

Living in isolated mountain bastions, Hold dwarves maintain contact by gruelling treks over inhospitable lands, through the treacherous Deeps or via the unpredictable skies; only dwarven obstinacy allows the holds any sense of unity.

Species: Dwarves

Short in stature but tall in self-esteem, dwarves are a robust and stubborn species. They value proper order and have a highly developed sense of justice, taking insults and grievances very seriously. Often seeking wealth in the form of precious stones and metals, dwarves form tight-knit communities, usually organised around industry and military defence, yearning to prove their greatness and indomitability to the world.

Holds

As the Dwarven Empire of the Golden Age collapsed during the Ages of Ruin, western dwarves increasingly retreated to and fortified their mines as a form of defence, coming to see these underground halls as the only proper place for a dwarf to live. Many centuries ago, at the start of the Ninth Age, the survivors met at the First Moot, swearing great oaths to defend their remaining Holds for all time: a single culture to preserve dwarven history and lore. The Holds are separated, sometimes by great distances, and they each have their own families, clans, guilds and monarchs. But they have never forgotten their pact, and they continue to maintain ties with one another against great odds.

Honour

The heart of dwarven culture is honour, a concept to which every Hold dwarf is fanatically devoted. Equally obsessed with solidity and permanence, dwarves are meticulous record keepers and exacting negotiators, spending days or weeks locked in moot halls that no party can leave until an agreement is sworn and carved into stone. Oaths, debts and grudges have great power among dwarves, and will be remembered for generations without end. The mysterious cult known as Seekers, devoted to the ancient ways of the old empire and its gods, is particularly notorious for its tenacity.

Guilds

Economic and social activity is hierarchically organised by guilds via systems of apprenticeship. These institutions are central to all parts of Hold life, including material and cultural prosperity, the development of new skills, and the upkeep of old traditions. Each Hold has its own set of guilds, which do not extend beyond a single Hold – though unaffiliated mining, brewing and engineering guilds can be found in almost every Hold. The exception is the Guild of Lorekeepers, which is a single institution working across all Holds, helping to maintain connections and a united culture.

Runes

Seeing spellcraft as lacking the qualities of hard work and perseverance, Hold dwarves have no mages or magical tradition. Their subterranean defences were originally embraced partly because there is little ambient magic to be found underground – excellent protection against enemy wizards, but also making it impossible to learn spells within a Hold. Instead, dwarves perfected the unique craft of runes: complex devices made with wolfram in such a way that they syphon faint nearby magic into themselves in a slow but steady trickle. After a long period of “charging”, these runes can then produce certain effects, either as an ongoing enchantment, or as a momentary flash of power activated by striking the carved symbols. This approach not only grants impressive and reliable powers in battle, but has the added benefit of drawing magic out of the local environment – a large number of runes together in a dwarven army can result in little remaining magic left for enemy wizards.

Technology

Famed for their skill with both steel and black powder, dwarves have access to an impressive arsenal of weapons, armour, firearms and engines of war. The quality of these armaments is arguably unsurpassed throughout the world, especially when they're tended in battle by master technicians and engineers.

Army Specific Rules

Ancient Grudge

During Pre-game Selections, a Dwarven Holds army marks units on the opponent's Army List with Grudge Markers (note that Characters can be marked, too).

The number of Grudge Markers placed is equal to the number of instances of Ancient Grudge on units in your Army List. All model parts with Dwarf in your army gain First Strike (Hatred (towards units containing a Grudge Marker)).

Hewn Out of Mountains

The player of this army has a +1 modifier on Dispel Rolls, as long as at least one friendly model with Channel (X) is on the Battlefield.

Army Model Rules

Shield Wall

Models of Height 1–3 using a Hand Weapon and a Shield simultaneously gain Aegis (6+, against Melee Attacks from models Engaged in their Front Facing), as well as Aegis (5+, against Melee Attacks from Charging models Engaged in their Front Facing).

Weapons

Forge Repeater – Shooting Weapon

Name	Aim	Range	Shots	Str	AP	Attack Attributes
Forge Repeater	4+	18"	4	5	2	Flaming Attacks, Quick to Fire

Guild-Crafted Handgun – Shooting Weapon

Name	Aim	Range	Shots	Str	AP	Attack Attributes
Guild-Crafted Handgun	X+	24"	1	4	2	Accurate, Stand and Shoot, Unwieldy (1)

Runic Special Items

Dwarven Holds armies cannot pick from the list of Common or Shared Magic Items, except for Common Banner Enchantments.

Instead, they have their own version of Magic Items called 'Runic Items', which are items bearing 'Runic Enchantments' (also called 'Runes'). These follow the rules for Magic Items, with the exceptions listed under each type.

Runic Weapon Enchantments

Runic Weapon Enchantments follow the rules for Weapon Enchantments, with the following differences:

- All Runic Weapon Enchantments are enchantments for Hand Weapons and Paired Weapons.
- Up to three Runic Weapon Enchantments can be applied to a single weapon.
- Each combination of Runic Weapon Enchantments is Legendary.
- Multiple instances of the same Runic Weapon Enchantment are cumulative, unless mentioned otherwise.
- When noting Runes on the Army List, use the following format: Runic Weapon (Rune A, Rune B, Rune C).

Rune of Destruction Extraordinary. Multiple Wounds (D3).	80 pts	Rune of Penetration +3 AP.	25 pts
Rune of Smashing Extraordinary. without Mount only. Attacks allocated towards a model with Resilience 5 or more have both their Strength and their Armour Penetration set to 10.	55 pts	Rune of Craftsmanship Uncommon. The weapon follows the rules for Great Weapon instead of its original Weapon Rules. This does not prevent it from being engraved with additional Runic Weapon Enchantments.	15 pts
Rune of Might +1 Str; +1 AP.	30 pts	Rune of Precision +1 to hit.	15 pts
Rune of Quickening +3 Agi.	30 pts	Rune of Returning Can be used as a Shooting Weapon with the following profile:	15 pts
Rune of Anger +1 Att.	25 pts	<table><tr><th>Aim</th><th>Range</th><th>Shots</th><th>Str</th><th>AP</th><th>Attack Attributes</th></tr><tr><td>2+</td><td>8"</td><td>1</td><td>User</td><td>User</td><td>Accurate, Quick to Fire</td></tr></table>	Aim	Range	Shots	Str	AP	Attack Attributes	2+	8"	1	User	User	Accurate, Quick to Fire
Aim	Range	Shots	Str	AP	Attack Attributes
2+	8"	1	User	User	Accurate, Quick to Fire
Rune of Lightning Rare. Max. 2 per model. Grind Attack (D3 hits, Str 4, AP 1, Lightning Attacks, Magical Attacks, and Unmodifiable). A model with two instances of this Rune increases the number of hits to 2D3. Note that these hits are not affected by the effects of other Runic Weapon Enchantments.	25 pts	The effects of other Runic Weapon Enchantments apply to Shooting Attacks made with this weapon (even if their effects were normally restricted to Melee Attacks, including Special Attacks). Rune of Fire During Combat Choices, the wielder may gain Flaming Attacks . Duration: Round of Combat.	10 pts

Runic Armour Enchantments

Runic Armour Enchantments follow the rules for Armour Enchantments, with the following differences:

- Up to three Runic Armour Enchantments can be applied to a model.
- Each combination of Runic Armour Enchantments is Legendary.
- Multiple instances of the same Runic Armour Enchantment are cumulative, unless specifically mentioned otherwise.
- When noting Runes on the Army List, use the following format: Runic Armour (Rune A, Rune B, Rune C).

Rune of Steel	50 pts	Rune of Retribution	10 pts
Must reroll failed Armour Save rolls.		When a model successfully makes an Aegis Save from Shield Wall , it immediately inflicts 1 hit towards the Health Pool of the model that caused the wound, using the same Strength and Armour Penetration as the saved attack with Automatic Hits . This hit is resolved before any casualties are removed and does not benefit from Weapon Rules or Runic Weapon Enchantments.
Rune of Resistance	40 pts	Rune of the Forge	5 pts
Extraordinary.		Aegis (3+, against Flaming Attacks).
Resistance.
Rune of Iron	25 pts
Max. 2 per model.
+1 Arm.

Runic Banner Enchantments

Dwarven Holds armies may use Banner Enchantments from the list of Common Banner Enchantments as well as the Runic Banner Enchantments listed below.

Runic Standard of the Hold	60 pts	Runic Standard of Steadiness	20 pts
Uncommon.		Uncommon.
All models in the bearer's unit benefit from Resolute . If the unit contains a model that already has Resolute from another source, the unit is considered to have two additional Proper Ranks instead of one.		One use only. Can be activated at the start of any Movement Phase.
Runic Standard of Swiftess	45 pts	The bearer's unit loses Unwieldy . Duration: End of Turn.
Rare.		Runic Standard of Dismay	15 pts
The bearer's unit gains Vanguard .		Extraordinary.
Runic Standard of Grudges	40 pts	Charge Range rolls against the bearer's unit suffers from Minimised .
Extraordinary. Cannot be taken by units that count towards "Core".		Runic Standard of the Anvil	10 pts
Ancient Grudge (1).		Uncommon.
Runic Standard of Wisdom	30 pts	Whenever a friendly unit Charges an enemy unit already Engaged in Combat with the bearer's unit and fails its Charge Range roll, it must reroll that roll.
Uncommon.
Select a single Battle Rune and write it on your Army List. This Battle Rune can be cast by the bearer as a Bound Spell.
It can only target the bearer's own unit.

Runic Artefacts

Runic Artefacts follow the rules for Artefacts, with the following differences:

- Up to three Runic Artefacts can be applied to a model.
- Each combination of Runic Artefacts is Legendary.
- Multiple instances of the same Runic Artefact are cumulative, unless specifically mentioned otherwise.
- When noting Runes on the Army List, use the following format: Runic Artefact (Rune A, Rune B, Rune C).

Rune of Denial 85 pts
 Legendary.
 One use only.
 The player can choose to use this Rune instead of performing a Dispelling Roll. The spell is automatically dispelled.

Rune of Devouring 60 pts
 Extraordinary. Runic Smiths only.
 One use only. The player can choose to use this Rune instead of performing a Dispelling Roll.
 The spell is cast as normal, but the Caster may not cast it again for the rest of the game.

Rune of Harnessing 35 pts
 Extraordinary. Runic Smiths only.
 In each of your opponent's Magic Phases, immediately after Excess Magic, they must discard 1 Magic Dice.

Rune of Channeling 30 pts
 Extraordinary.
Channel (1).
 This Rune can only be used if the model's army total combined value for Channel is 3 or less (excluding Channel from this Rune).

Rune of Shielding 30 pts
Aegis (+1, max. 4+), which can only stack with itself and Shield Wall.

Rune of Dragon's Breath 25 pts
 Rare.
Breath Attack (Str 4, AP 1, Flaming Attacks and Magical Attacks).

Rune of Grounding 25 pts
 Extraordinary. Runic Smiths only.
 One use only. Can be activated during Combat Choices.
 All spells with Duration: One Turn that affect any of the following units come to an end:

- The bearer's unit.
- Enemy units in contact with the bearer's unit.

Rune of Readiness 20 pts
 One use only. Can be activated at the end of the Charge Phase, immediately after all Charge Moves have been resolved.
 If the bearer's unit was successfully charged during this phase, it may perform a Combat Reform (following the normal rules for Combat Reforms).

Rune of Storms 15 pts
 Rare.
 One use only. Can be activated at the start of the opponent's Player Turn.
 Choose a single enemy unit within 24" of the bearer.
 The Charge Speed and Mobility of all models with FLY in that unit are halved, rounding fractions up. Duration: End of Turn.

Rune of Kinship 10 pts
 Cannot be taken by models mounted on War Throne.
 The bearer gains Ambush (Battlefield Edge), Scout, and Vanguard.

Rune of Mining 10 pts
 During Pre-game Selections, choose a Terrain Feature on the Battlefield.
 As long as the bearer is on the Battlefield, all friendly models may treat this Terrain Feature as Open Terrain when making a Move Manoeuvre (Advance, March, Reform), but must still follow the Unit Spacing rule at the end of their move.

Rune of Courage 5 pts
 One use only. Can be activated during Combat Choices.
 The bearer gains Stubborn. Duration: Round of Combat.

Battle Runes

Clans' Thunder 10 per 700 Army Points (rounding fractions up)

Model parts armed with the following weapons contribute to this limit:

- Throwing Weapons, at a ratio of 2:1 (two model parts with the weapon or rule count once towards this limit), rounding fractions up.
- Crossbow, Forge Gun, Guild-Crafted Handgun, Pistol, at a ratio of 1:1.
- Forge Repeater, at a ratio of 1:5 (one model part with the weapon or rule counts five times towards the limit).

For example, at 4000 Army Points the Army List is restricted to 60 model parts with the weapons listed above. If a single model part would be counted to more than one ratio, only use the highest.

Engines of War 1 per 500 Army Points (rounding fractions up)

Model parts armed with the following weapons contribute to this limit:

- Dwarf Ballista, Wurm-Slayer Rocket, at a ratio of 1:1.
- Flame Cannon, at a ratio of 1:2 (one model part with the weapon or rule counts twice towards the limit).
- Dwarf Cannon, Dwarf Catapult, Organ Gun, at a ratio of 1:3 (one model part with the weapon or rule counts three times towards the limit).

For example, at 4000 Army Points the Army List is restricted to 8 model parts with the weapons listed above. If a single model part would be counted to more than one ratio, only use the highest.

Characters (Max. 40 %)

Selected at a kingsmoot by the Hold's elders on the basis of honour, a dwarven monarch serves for life. Their power is held by oath: the King's Oath takes precedence over all others, and their authority lasts only so long as they uphold it. This makes honour and integrity essential to a successful reign. Kings are often proud, leading from the front with the Hold's finest regalia and weaponry.

Each Hold is composed of several clans, themselves composed of large families. Clans are led by Thaners, a rank bound by oath to Hold and King. Clan-therners are commonly given the honour of carrying the Holdstone; after the king, they are deemed to be the most resolute and honourable dwarves in the Hold.

Few within the Smithing Guilds possess the knowledge of how to accurately forge and strike runes of power. Guild master-smiths have access to potent runic artefacts and understand the secrets of unleashing their power on the battlefield. Those who fight alongside such skillful crafts-dwarves generally find they have the sharpest weapons in the Hold.

Engineers boast guildhalls in almost every Hold and are famed for creating great structures, machines, and stunning feats of weaponcraft. Dwarven warmachines and firearms are of unrivalled reliability, and when these masterpieces are operated by their maker in battle, they are even more deadly.

Seekers who have survived dozens of trials by combat may become fanatical. Their faith in the Old Gods becomes so powerful that some even believe they are a reincarnation of the Hold's ancestors. These dwarves are particularly fervent in their lust for vengeance, hunting the Hold's most grievous wrongdoers, even to the point of seeking out and dispatching dragons if necessary.

Character Mounts

The only thing more dangerous than an armed dwarf is an armed dwarf who can fight you from above. Many Hold warriors compete for the honour of carrying their leaders upon their shields, forming a particularly fearsome fighting platform.

Hold dwarves draw comfort from all things solid and unchanging, particularly earthen minerals. Their kings are often carried to battle on stone constructs designed for combat; proximity to the ancient rock gives the rider confidence and authority. It also has the advantage of raising the monarch to a height at which their great deeds can be witnessed across the field.

Core (Min. 25 %)

A dwarf's first oath is always to their family, and their second is to their clan. Every dwarf of oath-age is expected to fight for the Hold in times of war. The Clan Oath states that a dwarf must provide their own weapons and equipment, and will serve until an oath of greater importance honour-binds them to a higher duty.

Hold dwarves rotate into military service for two years out of every ten, throughout their lives. So while their beards may turn grey, their potency in combat only grows with age. So-called greybeards form brotherhoods-in-arms over many campaigns, and prefer to fight and drink with dwarves of their own station rather than the newly bearded.

It's equally common for dwarves to uphold their Clan Oath with ranged weapons as it is with blades or hammers. Many such dwarves are also oathbound to a Guild of Engineers, and like all Hold fighters, they wield arms which are uniquely fitted for their own physical specifications, resulting in weapons with deadly accuracy.

The King's Guard is unique; its only oath is to the King. These are professional fighters who, unlike other dwarves, are not required to contribute to the Hold economically. Their sole purpose is to defend the monarch's person and carry out their policies, both in times of war and peace. Their fighting skill and equipment are befitting of such an esteemed position.

Below the Holds lie the Deeps: a region of lightless caverns home to strange and terrifying dangers. Between these threats and a Hold's underground farms, mines and water sources, this subterranean cadre of dwarves stands watch. Their bravery earns them the very best armour and status in the Hold, and the duty to protect any dignitary's journey through the Deeps.

An uncompromising religious calling, Seekers dedicate themselves to pursuing those who break an oath, violate the terms of a moot, or wrong the Hold. They self-righteously enact this justice, violently, in the old way. Savage in combat, many Seekers choose to fight completely naked, leaving the outcome in the hands of ancient gods that they alone still worship.

As well as rectifying broken oaths within the Hold, some Seekers fervently balance external transgressions. They track down criminals, brigands or any man or creature deemed to have wronged their Hold. With their unorthodox and fanatical weaponry, there is only death at the hands of such Seekers; being marked is a terrifying prospect, for only one party will walk away.

Hold guardians are constructed from stone and metals, often to resemble dwarven ancestor figures. Typically positioned as a defensive measure, they're engraved with powerful runes that can imbue motion and even a rudimentary intelligence when needed, resulting in violent countermeasures against any enemies that threaten the Hold.

Hold dwarves are capable of creating mechanised vehicles with a combination of engineering and runecraft. Military models are known as grudge busters; each machine is unique and based on the individual specialties of a master engineer, with many brutal applications in battle. Grudge busters can be seen in the skies above the Holds or tunnelling beneath them.

Considered a dashing career for Hold dwarves, miners are essential for a Hold to flourish. As well as prospecting for valuable resources, they're cartographers and explorers of the Deeps. They aid in the protection of the Hold's tunnels, and provide vital countermining support against opponents in battle, often able to emerge behind enemy lines to great advantage.

The mightiest runes must be "earthed" in a greater weight of metal. Anvil-shaped slabs can be used to embed several; such a concentration of magical syphons can draw a substantial quantity of magic, leaving the area nearby almost entirely magic-free. Only guild master-smiths are allowed access to these potent artefacts, as it takes centuries to master the rune-lore.

Most Holds keep lands above ground: farmlands, transport routes, and key strategic landmarks. Rangers are tasked with defending these holdings, as well as scouting both nearby and farther afield. Maintaining skills lost to most dwarves, they're rugged survivalists and expert hunters, able to support their Hold in battle by harassing the enemy lines from advanced positions.

As time goes by, airships are becoming more essential for trade and communication between Holds separated by continents. Most dwarves loathe the open sky, yet certain pilots seem to thrive on the insanity of the adventure. The Aeronautics Guild of Kegiz Gavem first pioneered the flying machines; multiple designs exist, yet the steam copter is best-suited for war.

Engines of War

An artillery piece is a Guild-Engineer's life's work. Where the dwarves of the East mass-produce their weaponry, Hold dwarves focus on individual quality and precision. They dedicate years to perfecting each unique masterpiece, focussing on reliability and longevity. Further enhanced by cunning runesmiths, Hold-made artillery is rightly renowned for being among the finest – and most devastating – in the world.
