Warriors of the Dark Gods

The Warriors of the Dark Gods are an army of brutal fighters devoted to gods who seek the end of civilisation itself. Marching to war in hulking armour, they are accompanied by barbaric peoples living beyond ordered nations, and great beasts from the wildernesses where Warriors congregate. Implacable, merciless and expert in the art of bloodshed, a Warrior throng in its full dark glory is a vision to strike dismay into the hearts of the most stalwart opponents.

Those who serve the Dark Gods hail from every culture, nation and species, leaving their civilised homes to roam in warbands or form great armies on the outskirts of ordered society. Always on the move, their strength is often greatest at the edges of magically-contaminated realms - most notably the Wasteland and the Shattered Sea - where they journey to commune with their gods' servants from the Immortal Realm.

The Seven

There are seven Dark Gods, each associated with one of the most widely recognised sins. Just as each god has its own unique nature, so do their Warrior worshippers come in many different forms. Each Warrior's behaviour and objectives reflect the essence of the deity to whom they swore their pact:

- Savar, the Fallen Star, God of Pride. Beloved of those who have fallen from high stations or consider themselves above all others.
- Kuulima, Lady of the Flies, Goddess of Envy. The great leveller, She attracts the jealous and thwarted idealists alike.
- Vanadra, the Adversary, Goddess of Wrath. Patron of those seeking vengeance and the punishment of betrayers.
- Nukuja, the Sleeper, Goddess of Sloth. She who sees the end of all things, attracting prophets of doom and those without hope.
- Sugulag, the Collector, God of Greed. Taking by force all that he desires, thieves and misers flock to his cause.
- Cibaresh, the Tempter, God of Lust. Delighting in the subversion of the pious, to him are also drawn the deviants and the debauched.
- Akaan, the Devourer, God of Gluttony. The all-consuming Maw. Favoured by hedonists, despite its gross and diseased corpulence.

Father Chaos – unknowable and eternal, nemesis to all that is ordered and civilised, master of even the Dark Gods – is the metaphysical entity to which the Seven answer. He takes up those rejected by all else.

Uniting Chaos

Each Warrior pursues their own individual path of worship and dedication to their patron deity. Nationless, they seek only their personal glory and advancement along the treacherous road to Ascension. And yet they do come together in simple warbands with common causes, devotions and styles of fighting. With their highly individualistic philosophy, it's rare for such bands to join together into an army, but a sufficiently powerful leader, seeking exaltation above all, can in dire moments assemble a true Warrior host, sweeping all before it.

The Paths of Ascension

It begins with a pact in which a prospective Warrior – who may hail from any of the Ninth Age's sapient mortal species – willingly swears their soul to one of the Dark Gods. In this way, they forgo any hope at an afterlife, forswearing the gods of their people in exchange for power in the here and now, gaining great strength and skill in battle, and the title of Warrior. So long as they are in their Dark God's favour, this strength may be enhanced by proving their worth, and thus the Warrior ascends the long and difficult Path, promoted to the ranks of Chosen, then Chosen Lord at their god's discretion. But should they fail, a Warrior will lose their divine blessings and be named Fallen. Without one of the Seven's protection, the magic they're exposed to mutates their forms terribly, swelling them beyond normal proportions. With fortune, such creatures may find a new patron in Father Chaos himself. It can be harder and more brutal than ever, but for these exiles, there is still hope to climb a new path, eventually becoming Forsworn and even a Doomlord. The ultimate promised prize on either road is no less than immortality: both Chosen Lords and Doomlords can vie to Ascend as an Exalted Herald: a mighty supernal dwelling in the Immortal Realm. But those who fail to meet the standards of their patron are truly irredeemable, and little will remain of their failure but mindless flesh and power: a Wretched One, or for those who fail the final test, a Forsaken One.

Creatures of the Wasteland

The Dark Gods are hated and feared by all societies, and aside from those concealed within nations, their followers make their homes on the outskirts of civilisation. In particular, they're attracted to areas of high magical contamination, where daemons dwell, providing them with their legendary armour. In such regions, Warriors have encountered and either tamed or forged alliances with many strange and powerful creatures, from mutant steeds to towering monsters. These beasts can accompany them in battle, often with terrifying results.

Unsworn Allies

There are many who worship the Dark Gods without swearing the Warrior's pact, or find advantage in joining the armies which arise – especially “barbarian” tribes harshly treated by the great nations. Often such peoples are strong fighters in their own right, and under the right conditions they can be all too willing to support the cause of a Warrior warband.

Army Model Rules

Favours of the Dark Gods

When a Warrior dedicates themselves to their Dark patron, they are rewarded not just with physical strength, but often with other abilities as well – or else they develop such skills during their time in the god's service. Gravitating to others of a similar nature, they hope their actions, and indulgences, will catch the eye of their chosen deity.

A Character with a Favour cannot join a unit that contains any model with a different Favour.

Favour of Kuulima, Goddess of Envy

Charge Range and Pursue Distance rolls by units containing this Favour are Maximised.

Favour of Akaan, God of Gluttony

The first time a model with this Favour is on the winning side of a combat, its model parts with Path of the Favoured gain +1 Str. Duration: Permanent.

Favour of Sugulag, God of Greed

The model part with Path of the Favoured gains Great Weapon, Halberd, Paired Weapons, and Weapon Master. A Chosen Lord with this Favour may take a second item from either the Artefacts category or the Potions and Scrolls category (but cannot take a second item from both categories).

Favour of Cibaresh, God of Lust

The model gains Devastating Charge (Strider) and Feigned Flight.

Favour of Savar, God of Pride

The model gains Disciplined. Courage Tests taken by units containing this Favour are Minimised.

Favour of Nukuja, Goddess of Sloth

The model gains Aegis (6+). In addition, if the model is Height 1–4 it gains Aegis (+1, max. 4+, against no Armour Save*).

*Can only be used for attacks against which the model cannot take or would automatically fail its Armour Saves.

Favour of Vanadra, Goddess of Wrath

Model parts with Path of the Favoured gain First Strike (Hatred).

Hell-Forged Armour

The wearer's model gains Resistance (Toxic Attacks).

Spiked Shield – Shield

Shield.

When a Height 1–3 model is using a Hand Weapon and is Using a Spiked Shield simultaneously, and the bearer successfully passes an Armour Save roll of 4+ against a Melee Attack from an enemy model Engaged in its Front Facing, the bearer immediately inflicts 1 hit with the bearers Str and AP and Automatic Hits towards the Health Pool of the model that caused the wound, before any casualties are removed.

Trophy Rack

The model may take a single Banner Enchantment (using the bearer's Special Item allowance as normal).

In addition, the first time an Enemy unit engaged with the bearer's unit is removed as a casualty, including all Attached Models, the bearer gains Resolute.

Veil Walker

The Caster gains +1 to cast Learned Spells with type: Damage.

Magic Items

Height 1–4 only.
During Pre-game Selections, mark a point on the Battlefield with a Gateway Marker: it must be within 24" of your Deployment Zone, outside the opponent's Deployment Zone, and more than 1" from Impassable Terrain. One use only. At the start of a friendly Magic Phase, if the bearer's unit was allowed to move in the preceding Movement Phase (ie. it is not Shaken, did not Ambush, did not fail a Charge, is Unengaged, etc.), you may remove it from the Battlefield and immediately place it back on the Battlefield with Ambush (friendly Gateway Marker, that was not placed during this Player Turn).
- Immortal Gauntlets 55 pts
During Combat Choices, choose one of the following Attack Attributes for the wearer's Melee Attacks: Divine Attacks, Flaming Attacks, or Magical Attacks. Duration: Round of Combat.
- Lord of the Damned 20 pts
Doomlords and Sorcerers only.
Before rolling the Random Movement distance in the Movement Phase, friendly units entirely with Irredeemable within 18" of the bearer may choose to apply either Minimised or Maximised to the roll.
- Potions and Scrolls
- Wyrd Stone 35 pts
One use only. Duration: One Phase.
The bearer's model gains Hard Target (2).

Constructed by conclaves of sorcerers and daemons, these imposing platforms are endowed with the ability to ignore gravity itself. Whether made of flesh or mineral, they're ideal means of transport in battle, allowing the greatest among a warband to attack or evade more effectively, and their fixed blades make them quite deadly to any who dare approach.

Built in a great diversity of styles reflecting both local cultures and often the unearthly proclivities of daemon crafters, these armoured vehicles are intended as homage to the rider's patron deity. For most peoples, a shrine is a place of calm contemplation: a stable location for prayer and devotion. Nothing so mundane should be expected among Warriors. Rhino-like in strength and stature, these mighty beasts live in the wild in many parts of the world. Unlike some other Warrior mounts, they're not typically attracted by high levels of magic, but they do show more affinity for riders pledged to the Dark Gods than anyone else. The Wasteland was once open steppe; the Shattered Sea borders the wide prairie; the Heart of the Desert lies within reach of the great savannah. These and other sites of significant magical intensity have led to the drastic transformation of the already gigantic beasts that dwelled in such regions; today they are appalling mutant titans ever-ready to unleash devastation.

Dragons can inherently manipulate magic, but those exposed to unnaturally high levels of the substance, and to the Wasteland's many dangers, have changed. They spend less and less time in the skies, preferring to prowl at great speed over the ground, yet retaining their enormous power and living flame. Some have selected great Warriors as worthy riders.

Core (Min. 20 %)

Setting out on the Path of the Favoured, Warriors adorn themselves in suits of daemonically-forged armour, cementing the pact they swear to the Dark Gods. Rendering their soul forfeit, the godly power they gain makes them some of the most dangerous fighters in the world, able to endure any hardship to prove themselves worthy of advancement.

It is said that feldraks were once dragons: from scaled skin to reptilian lower bodies, resistance to flame, and imposing size and bearing, they clearly display characteristics of this ancient connection. Gateway: During Pre-game Selections, mark a point on the Battlefield with a Gateway Marker: it must be within 24" of your Deployment Zone, outside the opponent's Deployment Zone, and more than 1" from any Impassable Terrain. There can never be more than 4 friendly Gateway Markers on the Battlefield.

If a Gateway Marker is removed, all units within 3" of the marker then suffer 3D3 hits with Toxic Attacks.

Remove all friendly Gateway Markers if there are no friendly Hellmaws or friendly models with a Veilgate Orb on the Battlefield, at the end of any phase.

At the start of each friendly Magic Phase, if this model was allowed to move during the preceding Movement Phase (i.e. it is not shaken, did not Ambush, Fail Charge, is Unengaged etc.), you can apply one of the following effects:

- Mark a single point on the Battlefield within 24" of the model with a Gateway Marker, and more than 1" from Impassable Terrain.
Before doing so, you may remove from the Battlefield a friendly Gateway Marker that was not placed during this Player Turn.
- Target a single friendly unit within 9" of the model, not containing any model of Height 5, and that was allowed to move in the preceding Movement Phase (i.e. it is not shaken, did not Ambush, Fail Charge, is Unengaged etc.). Remove the unit from the Battlefield and immediately place it back on the Battlefield, in the same formation, with Ambush (friendly Gateway Marker, that was not placed during this Player Turn).

Doomlords and Chosen Lords alike may fall at the final and most brutal of hurdles in their journey to Ascension. For those who attempt the ultimate test, there are only two outcomes. Changelog

3.0.5.1.Bookmarks.Errata

- Wasteland Torch: errata implemented. Only actual change is that it that one can no longer burn SE and BH forests half the time.
